Not For Us.
Though juries make haste to absolve her
When a woman, in proof of her love,
With a nice nickel plated revolver.
Effaces the object thereof,
Although we don't think we are yellow,
We are sure we should never incur
The risk that is run by the fellow
Who sends a proposal to her.

It's tough, we admit, to be single
But small consolation we'd find
If our nerves were forever a-tingle
With the thought of a wife of that kind.
We should have a decided objection
If the passionate woman we wed
Was likely to show her affection
By loading our person with lead.

Though beautiful eyes might adorn her
And her cheeks glow like roses in bloom,
We know we should sit in a corner
Whenever she came in the room.
Whenever we dined with the charmer,
Uneasy we're sure we should feel,
Unless we wore bullet-proof armor
And a hat made of vanadium steel.

We make no complaint of the jury
Which holds, as we eld above,
That feminine outburst of fury
Are merely expressions of love.
We feel no surprise whatsoever,
Or even annoyance thereat,
But we are quite sure we should never Propose to a woman like that.

It takes two to make an 'orgy,' as well as the bargain that precedes it. Men are not solely responsible for the saturnalia of sex vice now sweeping the country. Girls not alone the chief actors in the nasty stories we read from day to day. You may not have noticed it, but in the Orthwein case at Chicago and in the Stokes and Stillman divorce cases at New York, all three women involved had passed the age of 45 and the men involved were between 26 and 30. That means that "sex equality" is in the offing and not very far off. Middle-aged wives, appropriating the privileges their husbands exercise, are dolling up and going out on a hunt for the "fresh," good-looking young fellows. The old roués who frequent husband's club, and his home sometimes when he is gone, won't do Madam, approaching fifty, and even with two or three children to her credit, also prefers youth and 'bloom' and with a practiced art, it seems, is amply able to entice the young man. When "Three Weeks" was first published the American public shrank from its seeming abnormality, but in the light of everyday happenings it now appears to have been quite the normal thing. The power that a married woman can wield over a boy, as Kipling so often indicates, is unquestioned, and it has been doubled in these days of body worship, when the well-groomed, pampered wife of forty is, as recently pointed out in a secret brochure issued by a French society woman, is at "the height of her charm." She has the advantage that knowledge gives her over single women, and though tragedy and scandal are the inevitable outcome, is using it in increasing numbers. The fact remains, despite equal political rights and the acquirement of "other interests," that woman is plying the trade elemental as never before. Instead of "uplift" we have entirely the opposite. The "other interests," so called, have only provided a convenient screen behind which a certain type of woman can work even greater havoc. It may be true, as radical feminists tell us, that this new and startlingly elemental creature is the free and the natural woman, the actual woman, going her own way, and that the modest and chaste woman of an elder day was only a fiction existing in the mind of man, was such only under compulsion from men, but if so, God help us. It can only end in a terrible reversion and finally, as has happened before in the history of the world, in a tightening of ancient tyrannies and a drive back to the home. "The sex" must use its liberty with more discretion and repression than it is now exhibiting, or some such outcome is inevitable if our civilization is to live. As

WHY SUFFER SO?

Why suffer from a bad back, from sharp, shooting twinges, headaches, dizziness and distressing urinary ills? Keytesville people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor! Could you ask for stronger proof of merit?

Mrs. Rush Vincent, Keytesville, says: "I have suffered with my kidneys and my back was very weak and sore a few years ago. When I stooped over the pain caught me in my back and I suffered terribly. I often had dizzy spells and my sight was blurred. Dark specks were always in front of me blurring my sight. My kidneys were weak and irregular and often felt very heavy. I was weak and tired and it was hard for me to go on with my work. I saw how so many people were being helped by Doan's Kidney Pills and I started to use them. They cured me entirely and the cure has lasted for I never have the least bit of trouble." 60c. at all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

showing recognition of an undoubted decadence, the single standard of morals measure passed by the Iowa legislature contained a provision penalizing women for enticing boys under sixteen. The bill, which would have excited ridicule twenty years ago, but which seems entirely sane and proper now, was drawn and sponsored by women to meet conditions existing under the 'new order.' What is wrong?—none can tell. Is it a state of mind consequent upon an ever recurring rebound, or in our political and economic progression have we recklessly violated biologic fundamentals? Time, in its travail, will alone determine.—Tom Bodine.
